What do you love?

Are you inspired by our rivers or mountains? Do you want to protect the wildlife? Educate our children? Appreciate world-class artists? Are you concerned that your neighbors may not have enough to eat or even a place to live? In Jackson Hole, there is one thing we all have in common – passion. Everyone may come from a different place and perspective, but once here, we know we are home. Our passionate commitment to this special community is tangible.

At the Community Foundation of Jackson Hole, we support passions. We help donors invest in their philanthropic goals by providing a variety of charitable giving options and prudently investing their funds. Planned gifts assure donors that they will leave a permanent legacy. Nonprofits rely on us for professional workshops, competitive grant opportunities, our volunteer website, and of course, Old Bill’s Fun Run. The Youth Philanthropy program is preparing the next generation to assume responsibility for our valley and is providing the tools for thoughtful stewardship.

Jackson Hole inspires all of us to invest in the enrichment of our community. Your support makes your love visible, and every day, we are grateful for your vision and your passion.

Katharine Conover, President

Jim Augé, Board President
Jackson is a different town than when I was a kid, but I can’t imagine another place I’d like to live. I believe the old adage that if you’re not moving forward, you’re moving backwards. I have four children – Chase (25), CJ (23), and my stepchildren with my wife Christy, Drew (16) and Lauren (14). My two oldest kids were raised here too, and they have a much broader

In 1938, when my father was 12, my grandfather moved his family to Jackson at the request of his aunt, Genevieve Van Vleck. The town had just lost the only doctor, and she wanted him to fill the role. My grandfather was in the Wyoming National Guard, and after his service in World War II, he moved the family to Casper. My dad always came back to Jackson in the summers, and when I was two, we settled permanently in Jackson when Dad was hired to be the high school principal in 1966.
view of the world thanks to the influx of diverse people to Jackson. They are trying to find a way to come back here, and I hope they get that opportunity. Where else can you put a ski jacket over your tie and do three runs on Snow King during lunch?

My first philanthropic experiences as an adult were based on the interests of my children. I coached and umpired for little league and volunteered for the ski team. I loved it, but as my kids grew, my volunteering became more about my interests. I feel passionately about Jackson’s history and preserving its natural resources. Open spaces are a vital piece of our identity and a large part of what attracts people to our area. It is important to balance our need for successful business with our responsibility to protect this place.

The Bank of Jackson Hole is a relatively small, family-owned bank, so I have the privilege of knowing all of the staff and many of their spouses. I also get to spend time with some of the best business minds and politicians in the world because of my work and because of where I live.

This town has given me so many opportunities, so I feel a strong responsibility to give back by serving on nonprofit boards and being involved. When I worked at Jackson State Bank, we became a Co-Challenger thanks to the Scarlett family. I transitioned to Bank of Jackson Hole, where the Biolchinis also see the value in supporting our community as Co-Challengers. We can impact each nonprofit in a meaningful way while also encouraging others to help make Jackson a better place.

I don’t know that I’ve met a more humble and giving person than Mr. Old Bill. His motives for philanthropy are so pure, and his dedication and leadership inspire people. His $10 million, 20-year commitment to support Old Bill’s Fun Run stabilized the event and made giving everyone’s goal.

Pete Lawton is a fourth generation Jacksonite. He matriculated from University of Wyoming with a degree in finance, then obtained banking degrees from University of Oklahoma, University of Washington and University of Chicago. His first job was at First Wyoming Bank in Laramie. He moved back to Jackson to work at Jackson State Bank in 1990. He has served on the boards of Grand Teton Music Festival, Jackson Hole Community Counseling Center, Jackson Hole Historical Society, Jackson Hole Land Trust, Jackson Hole Ski and Snowboard Club and the Community Foundation of Jackson Hole. In his spare time, Pete likes to travel with his wife, Christy.
2015 Competitive Grants

Through its Competitive Grants program, the Foundation supports projects with significant local impact. Applications are reviewed twice a year by a diverse committee of community volunteers, and funding for this program is provided by Old Bill’s Fun Run Co-Challengers, private donors and endowed funds held at the Foundation. The Micro Grants program provides small amounts of money for projects that are unique, unexpected and demonstrate potential to make a meaningful impact in our community. Donors to these funds include:

Adams Health and Human Services Endowment • Clearview Strategies/Annie & Travis Riddell • Collister Family Fund • Jean & Tim Day • Fir Creek Ranch • Four Seasons Resort Jackson Hole • Jaquith Family Foundation • Scott Kitchen • Tim Libassi • Amy & Lyle McReynolds • Meg and Bert Raynes Wildlife Fund • Ruth Moran & James Rooks • Carol & Chuck Schneebeck • Sandy & Dick Shuptrine • Pike H. Sullivan Jr. Conservation Endowment • Sibyl Wiancko Memorial Endowment for Conservation and Environment

Noa: This table belonged to my grandmother, and it is where the board of my family’s foundation, the McKnight Foundation, made decisions. The foundation is the legacy of my maternal great grandparents. My cousins and I would be running around the table while the adults sat and talked. From them, I learned the importance of not just board service but of volunteering and being tuned in to those around you and your community.

Ted: That sense of community was a big part of our move to Jackson 4 years ago. We’d been visiting for 20 years, and our kids kept trying to convince us to move here. We’ve always lived in cities – Minneapolis, Chicago, San Francisco – and we wanted a lifestyle change. People who live here really want to be here, and they are interested in meeting new people and gaining new perspectives.
Noa: Everyone is open to getting to know you and going for a walk or a ski. That’s how we found out about the Community Foundation.

Ted: We’d always meet up with a friend who worked at the Snake River Brew Pub. Six years ago, he joked that we should buy it, and we all laughed. Then Noa and I talked about it seriously.

Noa: One day after we’d bought the Brew Pub, Katharine Conover came in for lunch and told us about Old Bill’s Fun Run. I was confused but enthralled. It’s such a compelling way to be involved in philanthropy and to support all nonprofits in a fair way.

Ted: What makes Old Bill’s special is that it builds community. As new residents, it was a great introduction to the needs here.

Noa: We also appreciate that the community decides where the money goes; being a Co-Challenger augments and encourages that.

Ted: This strategy carries over into our other giving, too. For example, Snow King is very central to our town identity. For that reason, we supported the capital campaign for improvements to the hill. Mental health services and workforce housing are vital needs now, so we support organizations that are working for solutions. Our kids, Olivia, 18, and Mac, 15, love volunteering at Animal Adoption Center. We contribute financially and by taking in all of the cats Olivia brings home. We have Poe, Tilly and Oska as well as our two dogs, Vida and Zonker. Olivia was also a member of the Community Foundation’s Youth Philanthropy program.

Noa: I joined the board of the Community Foundation two years ago, and it has been a great opportunity to learn more about what’s happening here. I often bring that knowledge home, and it helps our philanthropic decisions. It’s a wonderful group of people, and the organization is well governed.

Noa grew up in Boston and moved to Minneapolis after graduating from Brown University. Ted grew up in Eugene, Oregon and attended the University of Minnesota. The two met in Minneapolis and moved to Chicago where Noa earned her Masters of Public Policy from the University of Chicago. Ted took a job with the San Francisco 49ers, and they moved to California. After daughter Olivia was born, Noa and Ted returned to Minneapolis and opened a family investment firm, C Note Management, which they now run from Jackson. Both have family roots in Minneapolis. They are up for the tame version of all of Jackson’s best activities — skiing, biking, hiking, fishing, snowshoeing, and creek tubing.

Designated funds can simplify estate planning by enabling donors to name one charitable beneficiary that can support multiple nonprofits or areas of interest.
Funds at the Community Foundation are often created to honor a loved one, address a specific issue or simply to streamline and enhance their charitable giving. The donors listed below contributed to one of the Foundation’s 240 funds in 2015:

It’s tremendously fulfilling to think maybe you’ve left the world a little better place. At one point, my wife Judy and I decided that we not only wanted to give to our community financially but also to participate in the work of the organizations we supported. My background is in investments, so joining the Board of the Community Foundation, and specifically the Investment Committee, was a good fit.

The Investment Committee is comprised of immensely experienced people who all live here and are part of our community. This group of individuals provides investment oversight for the $50 million in assets that the Foundation manages. In doing so, the committee ensures financial stability from year to year and develops resources to address future needs and opportunities. For nonprofits that rely on their endowment for a consistent source of funding, it’s challenging if the value of the fund fluctuates dramatically. That was part of the Committee’s motivation to transition from a basic traditional investment model to a more diversified endowment approach a few years ago.

The modern endowment approach incorporates all types of investment alternatives. This strategy requires a long-term approach and is more easily implemented with larger portfolios. When we bring together smaller amounts of money and invest on behalf of other nonprofits and donors, we can be much more sophisticated in how we invest and can offer an investment avenue that would not otherwise be available to them. The diversity of products enables us to achieve competitive returns with lower risk and volatility for all fundholders at the Foundation.

When organizations and donors invest at the Community Foundation, they work with people they know and who have expertise in the nonprofit industry. They trust that investment oversight is provided by highly qualified individuals. And they know that there is a world-class advisory firm – one that advises on over $13 billion in assets – recommending and managing investments.

The Community Foundation is very unique; it not only supports organizations, it creates an aspirational notion of philanthropy. Jackson is made up of a fascinating and complex group of people for which there are considerable needs and considerable opportunities. Old Bill’s has been fantastic in helping people focus on the importance of supporting others in our community. We moved here eight years ago, and while the natural beauty is incredible, in the final analysis, the people make the community.

Don Opatrny was raised in Cleveland, Ohio. He attended Cornell University for his undergraduate degree and received his Masters of Business Administration from the University of Chicago. While there, he met Judy, who was completing a Masters in Information and Library Science. Don’s work with JP Morgan and Goldman Sachs, where he worked for nearly 30 years, took the two east and abroad. After retiring, Don followed his interest in arts, education and the environment through his board service. He is currently the Chair of The Center and sits on the boards of several private schools in other parts of the country, as well as The Herbert F. Johnson Museum of Art. He is Chair of the Investment Committee at both Cornell University and the Community Foundation of Jackson Hole, served on the Investment Committee of the Mellon Foundation and is a board member of the bond equity complex at BlackRock. Don and Judy are collectors of contemporary art and Czech and European avant-garde photography. They have two grown children, Donald and Gillian and a grandson, Jacob.
Members of the Stewardship Circle have chosen to invest in the community by directly supporting the work of the Community Foundation. With their philanthropic dollars, the Foundation is able to convene the community around topics and issues of local concern. Their generosity also helps to provide important resources like Volunteer Jackson Hole, the Nonprofit Directory, a bi-annual Nonprofit Survey, educational workshops and our Competitive Grants programs to all of Jackson’s nonprofits.

I was born outside of Seattle, and my family moved to Jackson when I was four. My dad was hired to help start a bank, and my mom took a job as an emergency room nurse. Jackson was a really small town at that time, and we only lasted three years before returning to Washington state. But when I graduated law school, I knew I wanted to come back here for the quality of life, and it has proven to be one of the best choices I have ever made.

I have a son, Will, who is eight, and my fiancée Sarah has two boys - Owen, age nine, and Finn, age seven. As much as possible, we get the boys out in our wonderful backyard doing the things we love. Fishing, skiing, running, biking – there’s no shortage of options in Jackson. At the same time, we’re trying to teach them that this place is a bit of a bubble, and that while the boys spend their time recreating heavily, others are busy seeking proper food, shelter and other life essentials. It’s important to both Sarah and me that we participate in and help shape the community. We hope that in leading by example, we will motivate the next generation to do the same.

I joined the Jackson Hole Volunteer Fire Department nine years ago. It’s one time in life when people are always happy to see you, and you’re helping them at what is often their lowest point. I’m also on the board of the Community Foundation. Everyone on that board is passionate about something, and sometimes those passions collide, creating discussions that no one could have foreseen. It’s a very respectful group though, and we’ve come up with some really great responses to critical needs because of the myriad of divergent voices. If there is a need in Jackson, the Community Foundation is the first to know, so we’re able to make a significant difference before things go too far down the wrong path.

Knowing that the board and staff at the Foundation are competent, responsive and knowledgeable, I can confidently recommend their services to my clients at Adamson Geittmann, PC. Many clients are interested in making a philanthropic impact through their estate planning. The Foundation is a great wealth of knowledge for where the needs are and where the impact can be greatest, so clients are assured that their funds will be well stewarded and used. By working with the Foundation, they have more leverage in that they don’t have to manage everything themselves or appoint someone to do so, and because of the Foundation’s large asset size, they see a stronger return on their investment.

Clay received his undergraduate degree at Eastern Washington University and his law degree from Gonzaga University. In addition to his service as a volunteer fire fighter and Community Foundation board member and past Chair, he served on the board of the Teton County Housing Authority board for five years, and is currently a member of the board of the Teton County Search and Rescue Foundation. The family dog, Tuck, often joins Clay, Sarah and the boys on their adventures.
Through the Community Foundation’s Youth Philanthropy program, over 60 local high school students are learning how to award grants effectively by soliciting and reviewing applications, meeting with charitable organizations and discussing strategies for community impact. Donors, who have raised $20,000 for this fund, include:

- Ally Financial on behalf of Jim Augé/Teton Motors
- Carolyn & Jim Augé
- Adrienne Benson
- Peg Gilday & Maho Hakoshima
- Jannotta-Pearsall Family Fund/Ned Jannotta & Erika Pearsall, Chair Youth Philanthropy
- Northwestern Mutual/Nicki & Brendan McDermott
- Katharine Conover & Tim Rieser
- Terry & Bert Romberg
- Ruth Moran & James Rooks
- Pam Sather
- Margaret Creel & Roger Smith
- Youth Philanthropy Endowment

In 2013, an anonymous donor helped establish the Future Mr. (or Mrs.) Old Bill Scholarship. The recipient – chosen from the participants in the Foundation’s Youth Philanthropy program – is awarded $1,500 toward college tuition and $500 to grant to the local nonprofit of his or her choice.

THE 2015 RECIPIENT OF THE FUTURE MR. OR MRS. OLD BILL SCHOLARSHIP:

Marisol Hernandez, Jackson Hole Community School, spent over 150 hours volunteering during high school. She worked extensively at Teton Literacy Center as well as Habitat for Humanity. She made a big impact as a volunteer; a parent at Teton Literacy Center reported that it was almost solely due to Marisol’s tutoring that her child could read. She was President of the Community School Philanthropy Club her senior year. Her focus in all of her endeavors encouraged her peers to reach their own potential. Marisol is now a freshman at Bates College.

COMMUNITY FOUNDATION OF TETON VALLEY

Community Foundation of Teton Valley Affiliate
Mission: to improve lives through the power of generosity.

2015 TIN CUP CHALLENGE
• 8th Annual Tin Cup Challenge raised an astounding $1,157,601 benefitting Teton Valley nonprofits.
• 856 donors gave to their favorite charities through the Tin Cup Challenge with a median gift of $200.
• The Tin Cup Challenge has raised over $8 million for Teton Valley’s nonprofits in just 8 years.
• In 2015 we added 21 new Challengers, for a total of 123 businesses, couples and/or individuals who gave $1,000 or more to the Challenger Fund.
• The Challenger Fund pays for 100% of the cost of the Tin Cup Challenge, allowing the Community Foundation to offer this event FREE OF CHARGE to local nonprofits.

2015 GRANTS
• In 2015, the Community Foundation awarded over $50,000 in competitive grants, funding the projects and programs of 32 local nonprofits.
• In 8 years, the Community Foundation has awarded over $250,000 in grants to local organizations.
• In its 4th year, the Youth Philanthropy Program involved students in the Dual Enrollment Government class at Teton High School who awarded $3,000 to local nonprofits.

WORKSHOPS & NONPROFIT NETWORKING LUNCHEONS
In 2015, we were honored to offer several programs and services to our local nonprofit community, including:
• Spring Workshop series
• Spring and Fall Nonprofit Networking Luncheon series
• Workshop topics included grant writing, nonprofit finance and nonprofit visioning and sustainability

We also had the pleasure of working with several new community groups, nonprofit organizations and new nonprofit staff, advising them on nonprofit best practices, opportunities for mergers, new programs, fundraising techniques through the Tin Cup Challenge and important trends in our industry.

COMMUNITY NEEDS
In late 2014, representatives from six stakeholders in Teton Valley, (including: the Community Foundation of Teton Valley, Family Safety Network, the LDS Church, Subs for Santa, Teton Valley Health Care and Teton Valley Mental Health Coalition), met to form a Board of Directors for a new nonprofit called the Community Resource Center of Teton Valley. In 2015, the Community Foundation provided a professional facilitator for the first six months of meetings held by this Board, providing an important framework for nonprofit best practices in the development of a new organization.
