INVEST: devoting time, talent and treasure to positively impact the community

We are a family of funds, responsibly managed and maintained. By providing superior donor services, flexible charitable giving options and prudent investment alternatives, the Community Foundation helps donors support all the causes they care about at home and around the world. We help them structure their giving to provide immediate funding or to ensure stability for nonprofits in perpetuity.

The Community Foundation of Jackson Hole inspires the entire community to support local nonprofits and to celebrate philanthropy through an incredible annual matching grant opportunity – Old Bill’s Fun Run for Charities. The next generation learns the importance of strategic giving through the Youth Philanthropy program. Nonprofits find talented new volunteers through our Volunteer Jackson Hole website. Philanthropy reinforces our fundamental humanity and our shared values, connecting us to what is truly important.

INSPIRE: serving as a leader, catalyst and resource to ensure sustainability
ENRICH: improving lives through philanthropic leadership

When we invest our time, talent or treasure to enrich our community, we are all philanthropists, regardless of our net worth.

• Over the last 24 years, the Community Foundation has granted over $207 million.

• In 2013, 77 local nonprofits received a total of $667,600 from the Foundation’s competitive grant funds.

• The Community Foundation holds approximately 230 funds and $48 million in assets.

• Over its lifetime, Old Bill’s Fun Run has raised over $100 million to benefit local nonprofits.

• Since 2001, the Community Foundation of Jackson Hole has consistently granted more dollars per capita than any other community foundation in the United States.

• In 2013, students received over $92,000 in scholarships to pursue their dreams.
In this, Old Bill’s seventeenth year, we joined together as a community not to merely say “Thanks a million” to Mr. and Mrs. Old Bill, but instead to shout,

“Thanks a hundred million!”

Instead of the hoped-for $9 million, our community of over-achievers raised $9,809,404.13 for a lifetime total of $100,749,625.78 for local nonprofits. Today, one out of every three households participates in this annual celebration, and the median gift is still $250; we live in a community where everyone is a philanthropist regardless of net worth. None of this would have been possible without the inspiration and selfless generosity of Mr. and Mrs. Old Bill and their fellow Co-Challengers.

Supporting causes that are close to home and close to the heart is the essence of the Community Foundation of Jackson Hole. We help donors achieve their philanthropic goals by providing a variety of charitable giving options and prudently investing their funds. Planned gifts assure donors that they will continue to have a meaningful impact on local concerns far into the future. Nonprofits rely on us for professional workshops, competitive grant opportunities, a website to connect volunteers with the organizations that need them, and of course, Old Bill’s Fun Run. With our Youth Philanthropy program we are passing along the responsibility for our valley to the next generation and providing the tools for thoughtful stewardship.

Jackson Hole inspires all of us to invest in the enrichment of our strong cohesive community. Most of us came from someplace else, but once we arrived here, we knew we were home. “Thanks a hundred million” just begins to describe our gratitude.

Maralyn & Grant Larson

Maralyn was born and raised in Utah and has devoted her life to human services ever since she and Grant moved to Jackson in 1958. She spent 20 years as a volunteer at the St. John’s Living Center and 10 years delivering Meals-on-Wheels as well as many years as a docent at the National Museum of Wildlife Art. Her dedication to service earned her a spot as a semi-finalist for the Jefferson Award – a Presidential Award for volunteerism. Grant grew up in Provo, Utah, where he first became interested in politics after listening to his first convention on the radio. Grant was appointed to the Wyoming Highway Commission and the Jackson Hole Airport Board, and he was elected to public office as a Teton County Commissioner, the County Chairman for the Republican Party, and as a Wyoming State Senator. Grant volunteered as both a board member and subsequent president of the Jackson Hole Chamber of Commerce, Rotary and Golf & Tennis Clubs. He served on the Board of Jackson State Bank for over 30 years, including a term as Chairman of the Board. Grant and Maralyn are parents to Terry, Kevin and Karin. Kevin passed away in 1994. Terry and Karin and their spouses live in Jackson.
Through its Competitive Grants program, the Community Foundation supports projects with significant local impact. Applications are reviewed twice a year by a diverse committee of local volunteers; funding for this program is provided by Old Bill’s Fun Run Co-Challengers, private donors and endowed funds held at the Foundation. The Micro Grants program provides small amounts of money for projects that are unique, unexpected and demonstrate potential to make a meaningful impact in our community. Donors to these funds include:

“I can still tell you exactly what she was wearing the first time I met her.”

Lannie: Bill and I met over Kentucky Fried Chicken during our freshman orientation; we were married the summer after we graduated from Duke. We’ve been extremely fortunate, our family and their spouses have shared my parents’ and our love of the Tetons and Jackson. Two of our three kids were married in our backyard. They all look for excuses to visit during storm cycles in the winter.

Lannie: Most of the people who live here have consciously chosen to do so. They love the environment, the mountains. They live here for the skiing, the hiking, the fishing, the biking. But, in addition to their activities, they are involved and giving back to the community. There are at least five things per week that I wish I had the time to get to, which is spectacular for a community this size to have so much going on.

Bill: I don’t think we’ve ever felt at home as quickly as we have here. In the summers, it doesn’t matter what you want to do – a fifty mile bike ride, climb the pass on your bike, fly fish – it’s two or three phone calls and you’ve got a partner in crime to go with you.

Like a lot of people, we started by giving to our alma maters.

Lannie: Then we decided that we would have a better impact if we were making the decisions on a more local basis, so over the last twenty years, our focus has been the community in which we live. In Seattle, we were very involved in both SeaDoc, an organization that works to protect marine wildlife and ecosystems in the Salish Sea, and the UW’s School of Medicine and their sports medicine programs. I love being able to change the life of a child, or provide something special for education. It doesn’t always take a lot of money, it takes some thoughtful giving.

Bill: Going forward, we want our kids, Kristina, Peter and Katherine, involved in our fund at the Community Foundation where they’re helping make some decisions; that’s a great way to really lead them into philanthropy.

Lannie: The mantra’s always been time, treasure, or talent, and we’re trying to do all three at this point. Time is something that we all have, that we should give.

Bill: I just gave treasure for as long as I could, but I realized you can offer a lot more back if you’re invested personally.

We knew this was going to be home and it was so obvious to us that the one thing that helped everybody in Jackson Hole was Old Bill’s and the Community Foundation. That was where we started, and the first thing we did was become Co-Challengers.

Lannie: You sit there at the Old Bill’s Fun Run and you think “this is overwhelming”, but it is a wonderful way of getting to know all the different organizations.

Bill: I can’t do things I don’t really believe in. I can’t do things that don’t give me some psychic benefit, some happiness in some way. When I like something, it’s rather obvious. Mr. Enthusiasm.

Bill: The Old Bill’s Awards Party is almost as fun as going to Old Bill’s itself. This community comes together to receive their checks, and the sense of togetherness and sharing is just spectacular. I put it on a list and say, “please don’t schedule anything on this date; I want to be there for it.” It’s great.

Lannie grew up in New Canaan Connecticut and has a Master’s of Science in historic preservation from Columbia University. She worked for the National Trust and Christie’s Auction House before becoming a full-time mother and volunteer. She currently serves as Chair of the Board for the Library Foundation. Bill, a “corporate brat”, grew up in the Midwest, Scotland, and eventually the east coast. After earning an MBA from the University of Chicago, Bill worked at J.P. Morgan in New York, London, and Chicago for 19 years, and later in Seattle in the cellular telephone business before “retiring” in 2000 and becoming part owner of Safe Boats. After moving to Jackson in 2003, Bill joined the boards of the Community Foundation and the Teton County Search and Rescue Foundation. The college sweethearts recently welcomed their first grandson and eagerly await the arrival of their second in the summer of 2014.

We met because a very close friend of mine in college was Ned’s cousin. Since there were no men at Smith, one weekend Mary said, “Let’s go down to Princeton, see my cousin, have some fun.” And we did.

Ned: Surprised me. And that was pretty much it.

Erika: We’ve been married for 28 years, or as Ned says, “28 looong years.”

It’s a small town, but it has a very worldly population.

Ned: We moved to Jackson full-time in 2006. It just feels right to be here. There are endless things to do, and it’s lots of fun to share that together, with our kids, and with our friends as well.

Erika: You have people with incredibly diverse talents, interests and professions. We’re all drawn to Jackson Hole by the ability to do these amazing activities, so we have that in common right away.

We’re going to have our hands full over the next fifty years looking after this place. But we’ve got a good start on it.

Ned: This is one of the only intact ecosystems in the lower 48 states. It’s a unique asset, and it’s something that we really need to protect. There are so many threats to that ecosystem, because there are more and more people coming into this area; it’s just harder for the animals to survive. Where we want to build our homes happens to also be the best winter habitat, and winter habitat is basically what determines the populations of wildlife that can be sustained here. It’s a balancing act. We have to be vigilant to make sure we’re doing everything we can as a society and a community to provide the animals the best opportunity possible to survive and thrive.

Erika: I remember Ned’s mother, Debby, saying to us once that she felt very strongly that when she gives to somebody or to some organization, it initiates positive momentum. If I give to you, then you’ll give to someone else, and that person will give to someone else. I like to think about philanthropy in that way, that it has an incredible ripple effect.

Erika: My first memory of doing something philanthropic was when I was in seventh grade and my friend and I baked all these cookies, went to the local mall and sold them, and gave all the money to save the seals.

Ned: In Chicago, I became involved with the Food Depository, an amazing organization. Our kids spent days sorting food there, which was their first introduction to volunteering.

Erika: That’s why I feel strongly about the Youth Philanthropy program at the Community Foundation; I like to see young people thinking about what organizations they view as important and how they can help them — whether by volunteering, donating or sharing ideas. So we’ve done some things with our kids along those lines. Alex, Max and Summie see what we’re doing, what our interests are. That really excites me, that they’re invested in philanthropy as they grow up.

When you do it as a family, it can be incredibly fun and rewarding.

Erika: Whether you want to work or be involved in local nonprofits, it’s a great way to be connected. Otherwise, even if you live here, you sort of feel like you’re on vacation. The best part about being on the boards of the Community Foundation and Off Square, and now the Center of Wonder, is that I feel like I’m part of the fabric of the community.

Erika was born and raised in the western suburbs of Chicago and returned there after graduation from Smith to work in the film business before earning an MBA from Northwestern. Erika worked for Chicago’s PBS Station until the birth of her second child. As a board member of the Community Foundation, Erika chairs the Grants Committee, oversees the Youth Philanthropy program, and serves on the Executive Committee. Also from Chicago, Ned graduated from Princeton and has an MBA from Harvard. He spent 25 years working in the private equity business, primarily at GTCR, where he was Managing Principal before moving to Jackson. Since retiring from GTCR in 2011, Ned has continued to invest in a variety of private companies. Ned serves as Treasurer on the boards of the Greater Yellowstone Coalition and the Teton County Search and Rescue Foundation. Erika and Ned are fund holders at the Community Foundation and Bronze Co-Challengers for Old Bill’s Fun Run.

Through the Community Foundation’s Youth Philanthropy program, over 60 local high school students are learning how to award grants effectively by soliciting and reviewing applications, meeting with charitable organizations and discussing strategies for community impact. Donors, who have raised $20,000 for this fund, include: Carolyn and Jim Augé, Collister Family Fund, Carrie and Scott Kirkpatrick Fund, Jannotta-Pearsall Family Fund, Karla Tessler Fund, The StoneRiver Foundation Fund, Weiss Fund, and Dimmie and Greg Zeigler.

In 2013, a Youth Philanthropy scholarship was awarded for the first time. Funded by an anonymous donor, the recipient of the Future Mr. (or Mrs.) Old Bill Scholarship receives $1,500 toward college tuition and $500 to grant to the nonprofit of his or her choice. Three other finalists each receive $250 to grant to their favorite charities.

The finalists for the 2013 Future Mr. Old Bill Scholarship:

Meg Williams, Journeys School, volunteered at PAWS and the Eco fair, putting in over 100 hours of community service during high school, and spent her summer studying the conch shell as a volunteer with Earth Watch in Belize.

Alec Meacham, Summit High School, volunteered at PAWS, participated in the highway cleanup program and helped to eliminate noxious weeds in the Bridger-Teton Forest.

Juan Vazquez, Jackson Hole High School, volunteered at the Library and the Institute for Cognitive Health, helping those struggling with dementia.

The 2013 recipient of the Future Mr. Old Bill Scholarship:

Victor Hernandez, Jackson Hole Community School, has been involved with the Youth Philanthropy Program for 3 years. He volunteered for Teen Power, was on the young adult board at the Teton County Library, tutored at Teton Literacy, and devoted over 70 hours of community service through the Community School. Someday, he plans on becoming an immigration attorney.
Members of the Stewardship Circle have chosen to invest in the community by directly supporting the work of the Community Foundation. With their philanthropic dollars, the Foundation is able to provide services like Volunteer Jackson Hole, educational workshops and our Competitive Grants programs to all of Jackson’s nonprofits.

Due to the incredible support of our ever-expanding group of Community Champions, 2019 was a banner year for the Community Foundation of Teton Valley.

• Donations to The Tin Cup Challenge, our signature fundraising event (modeled after the FedEx St. Jude Classic), grew 54% to $72,000.
• Donations to the Tin Cup Challenge, our signature fundraising event (modeled after the FedEx St. Jude Classic), grew 54% to $72,000.
• Donations to the Tin Cup Challenge, our signature fundraising event (modeled after the FedEx St. Jude Classic), grew 54% to $72,000.

Our Youth Philanthropy program at Teton High School involved 40 plus students in our second year.

Since 2008, our Grants Program has awarded nearly $162,000 to local nonprofits.

The Community Foundation of Teton Valley is grateful for and humbled by the thronging spirit of generosity in the Teton Valley. We remain committed to continuing this moment in giving.
